PAST PERFECT CONTINUOUS PASSIVE TENSE

8. PAST PERFECT CONTINUOUS PASSIVE tense (P.P.C.P.t)

USAGE:

- Like the past perfect continuous in the active voice, the past perfect-continuous passive expresses and emphasizes the consequences resulting from a previous incomplete or ongoing action or state that began in the past and continues up to a specific time. Also like the past perfect-continuous active, the past perfect-continuous passive occurs most often in sentences that express actions that continued for a duration of time in the past and actions that caused other actions in the past. For example:
- 1. The child had been being yelled at by her mother yesterday.
- 2. Many animals had been being killed until the situation was addressed.
- 3. The cake had been being cake when the kitchen exploded.
- 4. Your document had been being printed just as the power went out.

► FORMS:

+ Positive form:

Subject + had + been + being + past participle.

Examples:

- -The glasses had been being cut.
- -They had been being forgiven.

- Negative form:

Subject + had + not + been + being + past participle.

Examples:

-Over 200 people had been being died by flood.

-A lot of phones had been being sold.

Had + Subject + been + being + past participle?

??Question form:

Examples: -Had over one thousand people been being passed away at Koh Pech in Cambodia in 2010?

-Had that house been being built there?

A. Short Answer:

Yes, + Subject + had. No, Subject + hadn't.

Examples:

-Yes, they had.

No, they hadn't.

-Yes, it had.

No, it had not.
